

about

When the hospital in Saintard first opened as an outpatient clinic in 2005, all medicine provided for the patients were those purchased and carried from abroad. As the numbers of patients and providers grew over the years, it became evident that both practically and missiologically, our medicine should be purchased in country. Currently, our pharmacy staff of one pharmacist and three pharmacy techs, work our medicine supply area around-the-clock, supplying medicines of many categories. While we still find it difficult to find all medicine in Haiti, we feel compelled to support the local economy by purchasing as many meds as possible locally.

future plans

In the future, we hope to streamline our pharmacy system by providing a bar code inventory system, prompting us to start our search for needed medicine at an appropriate time.
